S. B. Aller, Mrs. William Wilson, jr., and Edward B. Guion have been elected members of the Board of Managers of the Mount Vernon Hospital Asso clation in place of Edward Hartley, Mrs. Joseph S. Wood and Mrs. R. M. Winfield, who have resigned. The board will meet to-morrow evening and frame an appeal to the Common Council to make an appropriation from the excise moneys or the general fund to maintain the work of the hospital. The association was formed in 1890, since which time it has been supported by subscriptions from the people, and these have been generous; but the increased demands of emergency and char itable cases have drawn upon the maintenance fund so largely that unless additional financial aid can be obtained there will be only one alternative—to close the hospital. The managers and officers have given their labor and time to the interests of the hospital without one cent of salary or other remuneration; the medical and surgical corps have also given their services freely, and the only expense has been for matron, nurse, food, fuel, lights, instruments and medicines.

The Rev. Dr. J. W. Brooks, of Brooklyn, will conduct the services in the Presbyterian Church today, in the absence of the regular pastor, the Rev. Charles S. Lane. The convention of the Volunteer Fire Department, composed of delegates from the various companies, will meet on Thursday evening next to nominate candidates for chief, assistant chiefs, secretary and treasurer of the department. The election will take place on September 14. Edwin W. Fiske, the present chief, is reported to be sure of re-election. tive-to close the hospital. The managers and offi-

Judge Lippincott yesterday granted a writ of certificati removing to the Supreme Court for re-ylew upon a question of constitutionality the act Joseph F. Daly, as referee, yesterday forenoon sold under which the new ward lines of Jersey City at public auction at the front door of Manor Hall the were created. The application was made on August As they had already begun their labors he did not consider it wise to interfere with them, as thereby they might be prevented from obeying the law and then their work would be rendered invaild. Judge Lappincott said yesterday that as there were grave issues involved he would make the writ returnable on September 15 in order that a decision might be reached, if possible, before the November election. reached, if possible, before the November election.

Robert Heil, of No. 401 Pallsade-ave., and Anthony McGown, of No. 32 Liberty-st. Jersey City, went to the Hackensack River yesterday to catch crabs. In imaging with the scoopnet after an escaping crab, Heil fell overboard. As he went over he caught hold of McGown and dragged him into the river also. McGown, who is a good swimmer, tried to save Heil, but the tide swept him away, and the body was not recovered. McGown only succeeded in regaining the boat after a desperate struggle, the tide in the river being at all times swift. Hell was twe Mity-three years old. He was to be married in October to a young woman living on the Heights.

Quinn expects the best display of flowers, fruit and vegetables in the hortiplay of flowers, fruit and vegetables in the horticultural tent ever seen at a fair held by the society. The Art Department will be worth visiting.

GLEN COVE.-Wilbur Schenck, of Bayville, was terribly cut with a razor Friday night in a fight with Fate Spicer, a colored man employed by Mar-shall Torbett. Schenck says Spicer did the cutting. He dropped a large revolver from his pocket when shortly after the fight. He said the revolver was himself with it. Schenck is twenty years old. He is well known. His wounds consist of six razor cutis well known. His wounds consist of six razor cuts across the chest. The razor passed through all clothing and penetrated to the bone. Doctor Seaman, who attended the injured man, has little hope of his recovery. The scene of the light was the Sound steamboat pier at Bayville. He waived examination, and was sent to the Queens County jail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

The famous Hagenbeck Trained Animals will months. When, over a year ago, Carl Hagenbeck introduced at the World's Fair his marvellous trained animals-the result of his labor and cleverness-the public was not only interested, but as tonished. All who saw the performance immediately joined the great throngs was lauded the great work of this king of trainers. At the same time it was thought that Mr. Hagenbeck had gone as far as possible and that no more difficult ma-nocuvres could be taught the beast of the jungle. It appears, however, that the "wonderful Carl" has agains surpassed expectations, for the announcement of what he will show at the Madison Square Garden puts all his former efforts in the shade. The list of new animals includes a brother to Pete, the "dude" bear, who bears the pleasing name of Jakey and who rides a horse and does many tricks of which a circus performer might well be proud. William Philadelphia, the trainer of Black Prince, returns, and will show a Nubian lion who rides an elephant. He will also show Black Prince later during the engagement. Mme. Sakuntoia has one of the greatest wonders, a Bengal tiger, who rides horseback. There are many trained ponies, monkeys innumerable, some of which are also trained to ride, and other features. Professor Darling and his group of Nubian lions and Mr. Mehrmann's groups of tigers, lions, boars and dogs remain with the show, as will as the other animals which appeared at Manhattan Beach. The inclosed ring will occupy the centre of the amphitheatre, and there will also be a barred numer will be the enormous menagerie, also in the Garden, which will be open from 3 a. m. to 11 p. m. daily. P. D. ARMOUR ON THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK

WHAT HE SAYS OF THE NEW TARIFF LAW AND THE BEEF TRADE.

"It is a pleasure to be back in America again," said Philip D. Armour, of Chicago, to a Tribune re-porter, at the Flifth Avenue Hotel last night. "I went over with my friend here," said Mr. Armour, nodding at John B. Drake, proprietor of the Grand Pacific Hotel, Chicago, "solely to benefit my health at Carlabad. There were about 20,000 guests or patients at the springs, representing nearly every civilized nation on the globe. The only English paper I saw was 'The London Times,' which does "What do you think of the new tariff?"

"The law is not so bad as it might be, excepting the income tax feature. That is bad. It is not American in its spirit, and, when it existed before, was tolerated simply because it seemed to be a necessity. The most of the business men believe it will be difficult of enforcement. I have not diag-It will be dimeuit of enforcement. I have not diag-nosed the situation on my own account yet. I de-pend wholly on what my business friends say in regard to it. They are of the opinion, now that the question is settled and there is a foundation on thich to rest, that business will pick up and soon publican, I look at things from a Republican point of view. On general principles, I believe in a protective tariff. This new law, while it might have at one time been intended for a free-trade or a tariff-for-revenue measure, still retains protection features enough to enable business men to get on a firm basis before long."
"What is the outlook at home and abroad for the beef business?"

"What is the outlook at home and abroad for the beef business?"

"Not very rosy. During the last few years the producer has been stronger than the consumer. There has been a strong competition for a market on account of this, and it has resulted in a condition of affairs affording a very small profit for the sellers. All things considered, the producers are in the best shape. But we are hoping for better things before long, and are trying to do business in a conservative way until there is an improvement. I do not look for any sudden beom, nor do I know as that would be of lasting benefit. There is one more thing I want to speak of, now that I have a good chance," said Mr. Armour, lighting a cigar, "It ought to be a matter of pride to the publishers and editors of The Tribune that the paper retains its firm hold upon the affection and respect of the battest, intelligent and respectable people of the country, and particularly of the Empire State. An old schoolmate friend of mine, a tarmer of this State, ame out to see me about a year ago. We were talking over old times, and I asked him what he read. "Well, Phil, said he, I don't read very much. I don't have much time for it. But I read the Bible and The New York Tribune just as I used to do when Horace Greeney was editor. STEAMER AND TEGROAT IN COLLISION. The steamboat General Slocum came in collision yesterlay afternoon with the tugboat Robert H. Sayre, and had her rudder carried away. The Sayre was considerably injured. The General Siccum left Jewell's Wharf, Brooklyn, at 2:30 yesterday afternoon for Rockaway, with from 300 to 400 passengers on board. When she was off Pierrepont Stores the Sayre tried to pass astern of her to en slawed down, and the Sayre did not clear her. Some slowed down, and the Sayre did not clear het. Some of the people on board the Slocum declared that it not only slowed down, but backed a little. At any rate the Sayre was hit, first forward and then amidship, by the stern of the General Slocum. The rudder and a portion of the after guardrail of the General Slocum; were carried away, and the starboard rail of the Sayre was basily damaged. The carrying away of the General Slocum's rudder left. and rail of the Sayre was bully manufacturing away of the General Slocum's ruider left er helpless, and two tugs responded to her signal and towed her back to Jewell's Wharf, where her assengers disembarked. She was subsequently owed to Hoboken for repairs. When the passeners of the General Slocum landed in Brooklyn here was a rush by the passengers to get their noney back at the ticket office. Their money was not refunded, but they all received tickets good or a trip at some future time to Rockaway Brack, and went away satisfied. There was some excitement among the passengers on board the General Slocum when the collision took piace.
